

Please insert the following Abstract as a separate page
after the claims.

ABSTRACT

A disk brake, particularly a brake pad comprising a lining support and a friction lining. At least one pin is mounted on the lining support and serves to fix the friction lining. The pin should pass through the friction lining from approximately the middle while extending approximately up to the lining surface.